

When the Old Wagon Breaks

Come in and get one of our fine Studebaker wagons—the kind that stands up. If you have much hunting to do, a Studebaker will pay for itself in a few months by saving you time and trouble and the expense of constant repairs.

You Know the Studebaker Wagon

For more than fifty years its reputation has grown better every year. This reputation is due to the good quality that has always been a part of the Studebaker Wagon. Each part is made from the lumber that is best fitted for that part. New England black birch makes the best hubs—the Studebaker hubs are made of it. Built on a second growth black hickory is the best for axles—Studebaker axles are made of it. Selected white oak is best for spokes and running gear—that is what is used in the Studebaker Wagon. The Studebaker Wagon

Is Perfect in Every Detail

That is why we sell it. Come in and let us talk it over. We have some interesting wagon books for every one.

tray an emotion. When in 1813 he left Napoleon after his last audience, the generals gathered round him to see what impression the interview had made upon his face. "I don't think I satisfied their curiosity," said he, with a characteristic pride in his grave and cunning demeanor. At the same time he looked with a jealous eye upon his craft. He hated what he called "the policy of egotism, the policy of good pleasure." In his view the rival states were all members of human society, of which reciprocal forbearance was the first duty. "Do not unto others," said he, "that which you would not have others do to you." An inflexible bureaucrat, he preserved his principles inviolate, and thus he was able to look back upon a singularly uniform career. He adopted for his device "la force dans le droit," and he was certain that the right was always on his side.—Charles Whibley in Blackwood's.
